

Taiwanese Film Festival PSA copy

30 second

The Los Angeles Taiwanese Film Festival makes its debut at UCLA's James Bridges Theatre, December 12th through the 14th and features 9 compelling and extraordinary films including "Cape No. 7," Taiwan's Academy Award contender for Best Foreign Language Film. The first ever Los Angeles Taiwanese Film Festival, December 12th through the 14th, at UCLA. For more information visit www.tufusa.org. KPFK is an official media sponsor of the Taiwanese Film Festival.

60 second

The Taiwanese Film Festival makes its Los Angeles debut at UCLA's James Bridges Theatre, December 12th through the 14th. Nine compelling and extraordinary films with social, political and environmental themes include: a new take on an old martial arts film, where breakdancing replaces kung fu; documentary on Taiwan's Golden "Dance Age," Asia's "King of Pop" in an epic romance; a documentary on Chiang Kai-shek's displaced soldiers and the creation of the fastest solar powered car – plus special advanced screenings of "Cape No. 7," Taiwan's Academy Award contender for Best Foreign Language Film. The first ever Los Angeles Taiwanese Film Festival, December 12th through the 14th, at UCLA. For more information visit TUFUSA.org. KPFK is an official media sponsor of the Taiwanese Film Festival.